WE NOMINATE

the hundreds upon hundreds of Princetonians of all ages who over this Holiday Season opened their hearts to others in contributing more than $4,480 to the 23rd Annual Town Topics Christmas Appeal. As we move forward into the new year, in a world palsied by doubt and thirsting for peace, it is reassuring to know that Princetonians over two decades have now given some $71,700 so that thoughtful and specialized assistance can be extended to those seeking understanding and those thirsting for a needed sense of belonging.

For their uplifting generosity; for taking to heart their community's human needs; for refusing to permit others less fortunate than themselves to remain in the shadows of despair where tomorrow is all too often another cold, cheerless day; these perceptive neighbors of ours are our nominees as Princeton's

GIRLS! Princeton University's band shows off some of its newest, leggiest and prettiest members. The University admitted women undergraduates (including clarinet players) for the first time in 1969. For a review of the decade now coming to a close, see "This Is Princeton."

This Is Princeton

THAT 1960 DECADE

Ten Years in Princeton. Ten years ago, as 1959 waned, TOWN TOPICS looked back over the '50s and observed that in the 1950 census, the combined population of Princeton Borough and Township was 17,637.

"How close," TOWN TOPICS asked, "to doubling that figure would Princeton be, by 1970?"

With 1970 and a new census ahead, Princeton, combined, is around 25,000.

Trucks. Predicting what the 1960s would bring to Princeton, TOWN TOPICS said confidently at the end of 1959 that the biggest change would come from the truck by-pass to be built during the 1960s.

Like a light that flickers dies and flares up again, the 92A truck by-pass came and went in the news columns during the years. Latest: approval in 1969 of the alignment between Routes One and 206, and that's where the truck is stalled.

Consolidation. Another observation from TOWN TOPICS' look into 1969: "If consolidation is not effected long before the approaching decade has run its course, the cost of such neglect will be billed annually to one generation of Princetonians after another."

Nine years later, in 1969, a preliminary study showed that the tax gap between Borough and Township is still just too great to leap under present state laws, too unfavorable for the Borough even to consider. And that's where THAT truck is stalled.

A look into Princeton's past shows . . .

Shoes and Steak. Those hilarious pointy-toed, needle-heeled shoes the girls wore in the '60s.

Porterhouse steak at 85c a pound and rib roast for 63c . . . jumbo shrimp for 89c and a nice, resounding 3% interest on your savings account.

You could have a meal at Witherspoon Street's new Lamplighter Restaurant, next to Spring Street's Lahiere Kane auto agency. Both are now memorialized by black top parking.

Did you buy a chair from the Reliable Furniture Store on Witherspoon? A Studebaker from Dohm and Kerr? A Madras sports jacket from Lahey's Men's Shop? A tweed skirt from Mary Chapin? A two-by four from The Building Center?

Lyons' Market . . . Schafer's Market . . . Wilcox' Pharmacy . . . Viedt's . . . Elise Goupil . . . many long-standing business firms said good-bye to Princeton during the decade.

Riot! That University across Nassau Street had, in 1960, its first student riot in three years; (the S.D.S. were still Cub Scouts).

A new police chief — Raymond Mondone — took office in late 1959 and announced sternly that he planned to crack down on jay walkers.

What's Urban Renewal? Controversies that set Princeton a-boiling can hardly be remembered now. The Princeton Hospital trustees elections in 1960 . . . fluoridation of the water supply! . . . and, most burning of all in 1960, a proposal for urban renewal in the John Witherspoon — Hulfish — Green Street area.

Dogs were snapping at Princeton's heels all during the '60s, and traffic and parking, parking garages and maybe mini-buses? wove in and out of the news for ten years.

In 1960, Princeton had a "Community Audit" made by the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom. The Audit talked a Negro population (the term "black" was still an insult) of 9-11% in Princeton. Two percent of the town's firms said they would never hire a Negro . . . eight white barbershops said "no" to Negro customers.

One Negro interviewed said, "We don't necessarily want to go to white functions. We only want equal rights in things we should have." A white, interviewed, asked "How do you meet Negroes in Princeton?"

As 1960 came in, TOWN TOPICS "Question of the Week" elicited the comment that "the chances for a lasting peace are bolstered by Eisenhower's 11-nation good-will trip; in fact, the chances for peace are better than they were a decade ago."

And who, in 1960, had ever heard of Vietnam?

Hurricane Donna came in 1960. In December, Princeton had its biggest snow in 13 years, and the heaviest pre-winter snow since 1786, when George Washington probably slept here.

1961 saw the hottest summer on record. Everybody was uptight about fall-out shelters and Borough and Township voted to eliminate the building permit fee for people who wanted to build them. "Operation Alert" brought "hypothetical bomb blasts." (What did you do with YOUR bomb shelter?)

Sometimes the news looks like a re-play of last week's paper: in 1961, people were upset because Nassau Savings and Loan wanted to move into 19 Vandeventer. The old house is in the news columns of this week's TOWN TOPICS. . . . Harry's Brook was polluted . . . conservationists were upset about building in the flood plain . . . peace marchers came through Princeton.

In a Jaycee survey, 88 per cent said Princeton "is a good town" but 36 percent said traffic is terrible.

1962. The Township School Board warned the Borough it was planning to build Township High, but the possibility of merged school system was raised during the February elections.

"What made the market drop?" investors asked in June.

The University closed off College Road and President Robert F. Goheen complained of "lack of understanding" between town and gown after the Borough refused to grant a zoning variance for New South (The decision was later reversed and New South is now a familiar silhouette on the campus horizon.)

Negotiations began among Miss Fine's School, the Borough and the Seminary that would result in a land swap and a new Borough Hall by 1967.

Kenneth Michael came to Princeton High as principal. The starting salary for a teacher was $4500 and Princeton University bought the old Nassau Street School.

Princeton got its first non-campus radio station: WHWH opened in September. New Governor Richard Hughes moved into Morven.

Drought in summer, with a schedule for watering your lawn, and chants of "we want water!" from undergraduates taking a dry shower.

"Are adolescents outcasts?" asked a young writer of TOWN TOPICS.

1963. Mourning. late in the year; Princeton kept its flags at half mast for a month in memory of President John F. Kennedy.

PAIR—the Princeton Association for Human Rights—was formed and six bus loads of Princeton residents went to the March on Washington to hear Martin Luther King Jr. say "I have a dream."

In town, it was building year: the University moved its old Woodrow Wilson building back from Washington Rd. "as casually as a child would move blocks" to make room for the Yamaki building.

"The Bait" restaurant was land to rest: undergraduates even staged a funeral — land was bought for a new public library — Upper Pyne was torn down and One Palmer Square begun on its site — Princeton Hospital announced plans for a seven-story expansion — the Borough voted study money for a new Borough Hall — Griggs Restaurant Frazee - Midway Tavern building was razed; on the corner of Witherspoon and Hulfish — Trinity Church was gutted by fire.

In May, there was an undergraduate riot, with two leaders sentenced to five days in jail: "the cream of the crop can go sour at a moment's notice . . ." said a psychiatrist interviewed by TOWN TOPICS.

Postage went from 4 cents to 5 cents and a device called a ZIP code went into effect.

Eugene P. Wigner won the Nobel Prize in physics and young scholars got a new place to work: the Princeton Study Center.

But mostly "kids want a place to go for dancing, cokes and hanging around — ".

Robert V. Dilley was named chairman of a committee to study possible consolidation of Borough and Township. A pledge for "Open Housing" drew 3,672 Princeton signatures.

1964. "There are almost as many people who want a swimming pool as people who love dogs." That's a reflection of two issues that tore Princeton in 1964 as in many of the 1960s.

But it was a happy year, in contrast to the mourning of '63. Young Leslie Bush brought home an Olympic Gold Medal as diving champion and Princeton held a joyous parade in her honor.

In the summer, 1,500 Wally Byam trailers lined up for a vacation holiday in Montgomery Township. The Princeton High School Choir made its second successful concert tour of Europe. The new Princeton Regional Ballet bowed to Princeton audiences.

Man of the Year was Joseph David Oznot, a man who didn't exist. University undergraduate pranksters, playing it straight-faced got him admitted to Princeton before the hoax was uncovered.

Princeton Borough voted for a Democratic President — Lyndon B. Johnson — for the first time since Woodrow Wilson. Barry Goldwater didn't take a single Borough or Township district.

LOMBARDO TO APPEAL

Cornforth Wins, Judge Says. Martin P. Lombardo will continue to fight for a seat on Borough Council even though Judge George Barlow ruled last week that Charles Cornforth beat Mr. Lombardo to the seat by a single vote.

Counsel for Mr. Lombardo said Monday that the Democratic contender would take the case to the Appelate Division of Superior Court.

New Councilmen are scheduled to be sworn in at noon New Year's Day—this Thursday—and Mr. Lombardo may try to obtain a restraining order from the court to keep Mr. Cornforth from being sworn in.

If Mr. Cornforth is sworn in as Councilman for a three-year term, he could be sworn out again, so to speak, if Mr. Lombardo's appeal should be successful, lawyers say.

Judge Barlow only ruled on four of the nine contested absentee ballots. He said the other five weren't within his jurisdiction because the Mercer County Board of Elections had approved them all by a majority vote.

Of the four, he ruled that one Lombardo vote was void, one Cornforth vote was void and the other two were in the Cornforth column. This gave Mr. Cornforth the Council seat by 1,632 to 1,632.

Judge Barlow added however, that if he had considered all nine, he would have ruled invalid one more Cornforth vote.

Judge Barlow's judgement could be formally signed and filed with the Superior Court clerk by this Tuesday afternoon. Customarily, an appeal is not made until that formal filing.

If Mr. Lombardo succeeds in obtaining a restraining order, and Mr. Cornforth isn't sworn in on New Year's Day, Council would have only five members.

Of the five, three are Democrats and two Republicans, which means that Democrats could begin the New Year with a new Mayor by voting down all of Mayor-elect Robert Cawley's municipal appointments.

"NO" TO BEATTY HOUSE

Zoning Reversed. Borough Council won't allow the Beatty House at 19 Vandeventer to be converted to law offices and an apartment.

The Borough Zoning Board had recommended granting a variance to lawyer Sidney Souter so he could move his law office to the historic old dwelling. But Council, in a year-end session Monday night, voted 3-2 to deny the variance. Councilman Fred Peterson was absent.

"No" votes were cast, a cross party lines, by Councilmen Alan Carrick, Robert Hendry and James Andrews. Councilmen Alice Male and Charles Cornforth voted in Mr. Souter's favor.

Mr. Souter said later Monday night that he and Lester Slatoff, owner of the house, would decide jointly whether or not to appeal Council's rejection.

After the vote, Mr. Andrews suggested and Council unanimously agreed, to ask the Borough Planning Board (probably, in the end, the new Regional Planning Board) to investigate an Historic Landmarks Ordinance which might protect valuable old buildings.

("Be careful," gloomily warned Alan Frank, from the audience, "a lot of property could come off the tax rolls that way.")

Mr. Hendry said he voted no because he didn't like spot variances in that area. Mr. Carrick explained that, although he was sympathetic to Mr. Souter, he didn't like putting business in an R-4 zone. "But if this should mean demolition of the Beatty house, I'd feel I made a mistake voting against the variance," he added.

Mr. Andrews said he didn't think the Souter application considered the volume of traffic produced by a law office. He stated that his "no" vote meant also that he opposes any multi-family use for what he regards as "a critical historic building."

On the other side, Mrs. Male said there was scant possibility that any one would buy and remodel the house for single family use. "I believe Mr. Souter would preserve the building, and I regard his proposal as a good compromise," she said.

Mr. Cornforth said he was afraid the house "had gone down hill" since the Ardis Leigh antiques show-room moved, and he feared that no owner would be able to maintain it.

Talking with neighbors on the block, he said he found very little fear that "the sanctity of R-4 was being violated."

"But if it had been any other building than the Beatty House, I would have voted to deny the variance," he explained.

Paul E. Harvey was granted variances to convert 157 Witherspoon to a business-apartment use. He needed a variance from the zoning requirement that specifies 40% business — 60% residential use in that area. He will use about 60% for business. Mr. Andrews voted against granting the variance.

Council also voted its agreement that the Township's Planning Board should remain in existence at least until January, 1971, to work out the new Township zoning ordinance.

A LITTLE GAME OF POOL: Princeton's Community Swimming Pool was one of the brightest additions to the town during the decade of the 1960s. It opened Memorial Day, 1967.

tion was appointed. The Borough Board of Education broke ground for its John Witherspoon School.

Tragedy, as always darkened the year. As 1964 opened, six in the same family died as a Lawrence Township home burned. Two young brothers drowned in Lake Carnegie in February.

1965. The mid-decade year was full of smoke and fire in Princeton. In February, Borough and Township School Boards, their 18 members symbolically lined in a row on the Princeton High auditorium platform, solemnly recommended merger of the two school systems.

In a bombshell statement soon after, the Borough Board's president broke ranks and said that as an individual Borough citizen, he couldn't go along with the merger idea.

Princeton was divided 50% (for "Save Our Schools") opposed merger; the Friends of Public Education supported it. In the October referendum, merger was voted down by 158 Borough votes.

The Township announced plans for Township High, and held a public meeting to find out what kind of high school Township residents wanted. The Borough's Princeton High was so crowded that two new prefab buildings were erected.

Meantime, the Dilley consolidation committee announced its findings: consolidation of Borough and Township was "not practicable at present" and indeed it might be 1985 before the tax differential between Borough and Township would smooth away.

Looking toward 1970, the Borough's five-year capital budget foresaw a new library, a new Borough Hall, development of the land north of Route 206 for recreation (did you read last week's Recreation Master Plan?)

McCarter Theatre celebrated its 35th birthday and the Princeton University Press broke ground for a new building on the Princeton Pike.

"The question of a new post office promises to be discussed frequently and with some heat in the months ahead" wrote TOWN TOPICS in January. And later—"1965 was the year the Township said 'no' to a post office on North Harrison Street." The Township, in 1970, will still say 'no,' in the courts.

David Graham died of wounds and became Prince ton's first Vietnam war victim.

Princeton residents marched in protest against American involvement in Vietnam and ten went on the Selma-Montgomery march.

"Second Presbyterian" became "St. Andrews."

"A public swimming pool cannot possibly be constructed before the summer of 1966. . ."

1966. This was the year Borough and Township schools finally merged. All spring, the school pot simmered. School elections gave victory to all three pro-merger Borough School Board candidates and with that shift in balance, a second merger referendum was held June 21: "Yes!" by 1,510 in the Borough; 2,296 in the Township. "No!" by 1,235 in the Borough, 196 in the Township.

Chester Stroup, in the Borough School system for 20 years, most recently as superintendent, departed for a new job in Haddonfield.

Youth dominated the news for the first time. "The Tomb" and "The Catacombs" were teen lounges in Princeton churches. A committee of teens started selling balloons, washing cars and publishing a paper ("The Changing Times") to raise money for a lounge. Some 700 adults attended PHS forums on youth problems. The Lions Club offered $150,000 to build a 15,000 square foot Center. Parents and teens formed a committee to start a Youth Center.

In July, everybody counted pennies for a new 3% state sales tax. And in July, we hit a record 101 degree heat.

"Thunderball" drew 9,698 to the Playhouse. ("Thunderball"? Who remembers it?)

Jackson Street was broadened, widened, re-aligned and changed to Wiggins Street — the most significant change on the face of the town in the entire decade. Nearby, the new public library was opened, late in November.

Mortgage money was tight in the fall quarter of '66 — who says things change? (Parking garages were back in the Borough's 1969 capital budget. Ho hum . . .)

1967. Memorial Day opened the new Princeton Community Swimming Pool . . . In the fall, the new Borough Hall opened its doors.

Princeton won't get a bypass for another ten years, said State Transportation Commissioner David Goldberg.

"There is more blood on the Kingston Bridge than on any spot in Central New Jersey," said a resident at one of several public hearings on a safe new bridge. Late in 1969, the safe broad new bridge was finally opened to traffic.

Bainbridge House (the former public library) opened gracious doors to another era in Princeton's history, as the Historical Society established its headquarters there.

In another public building—the former Borough Engineering Building — Princeton's teens set up their Youth Center.

"Why do teen-agers take drugs?" was a new question in '67. Increasing use of drugs.

CONFRONTATION: Robert F. Goheen, president of Princeton University, found himself confronted by undergraduate militants in the late 60s, although Princeton's campus has remained relatively stable.

like the Newark riots, brought the harsh outside world into elm-shaded Princeton. (And even the elms began to go, in '67, to Dutch elm disease.)

Princeton Community Housing, Inc., was formed to sponsor middle-income housing under a new state law, and 1970 is sure to be the year of testing for middle-income housing in Princeton.

Svetlana Alliluyeva left her Soviet home-land and settled in Princeton. Other names made Princeton news: Philip E. McPherson came as superintendent of the new Princeton Regional School District, Lt. Francis Maguire left the Borough force to be chief in West Windsor.

Princeton's second Vietnam death came February 6 when Lt. Richard D. B. Shepherd was killed.

2,000 signed "Negotiation Now" petitions on Vietnam and TOWN TOPICS closed its year-end survey with "sobering thoughts of what 1968 may bring."

1968. What it brought, of course, was two more periods of national mourning: in April 5,000 people mourned Martin Luther King Jr. in various memorial services around Princeton. In June, almost as many stood on the Princeton Junction platform as Robert Kennedy's funeral train passed slowly by.

Princeton's third Vietnam death came this year: Lt. William S. Smoyer was killed July 28.

Violence struck Princeton in a personal way when Kristi Pfister, a teller at Princeton Bank and Trust, was shot and killed during an attempted bank robbery.

In an unprecedented action, Princeton voters twice defeated the school budget, forcing it by law into the unwilling hands of Borough Council and Township Committee for final action.

Even more startling to the community was the unexpected resignation of Kenneth Michael from his job as principal of Princeton High: "One problem is race, one is drugs. I am paid to solve both and I cannot," he said in a resignation statement.

Undergraduates belonging to S.D.S. — Student for a Democratic Society — demanded an end to Princeton University's involvement with the Institute for Defense Analyses and, in part, won their point as the University loosened its ties with IDA. Confrontation occurred, but not, in 1968, on the scale that it occurred at other universities.

The University suffered its worst fire since 1944 when flames roared through Little Hall.

Rock Mass was joyously sung in the Princeton University Chapel. "The Graduate" and "Bonnie and Clyde" played on and on, reflecting the alienation of youth and the violence of the times. And at some point in the '60s, it became "in" to say "films" instead of "movies."

Princeton Hospital opened a $3 million, 42-bed addition.

Would passage of the bond issue bring the by-pass closer?

1969. Men landed on the moon for the first time and Princeton's John Houbolt played a vital part: his Lunar Orbit Rendezvous plan is what made the moon landing possible.

Girls landed on the Princeton University campus for the first time and it was hard to tell which event had greater impact on mankind.

Women undergraduates — less than 200 to start — brought a sweep of street-length maxi coats and thigh-length mini skirts to the button-down Princeton campus. But these button-down male ways had gradually dissolved anyway during the '60s with the advent of blue jeans, long male hair, beards and the Afros worn by black undergraduates, who were themselves symbolic of the changes at Old Nassau.

For the town, the coming of women meant the loss of the Princeton Inn, a stately and pleasant place for dining for almost half a century, scheduled now to become a women's dorm.

Dogs! The Township finally got a dog-control ordinance, freeing the municipality's time for controversies as yet unborn.

The sober problem of youth and drugs occupied many Princeton adults. But asked by Republicans during the election campaign to define the Installation of a traffic light at Elm and Cleveland came after a long series of pleas to state and county. Another kind of traffic made news when citizens protested construction of a Sterling jetport north of Princeton.

The schools made the most local news: a land purchase referendum was defeated; a teacher improvement program for Wednesday afternoons was debated year long; Raymond Male was refused certification by the state and therefore denied the job of principal at Princeton High.

The state report that said the tax gap was too great for consolidation, didn't keep Borough and Township from creating a new joint planning board.

Issues more than politics, made news in the '60s. The Borough began the decade with Democrat Raymond F. Male as mayor, but eight of the ten years saw Republican Henry S. Patterson in the mayor's chair.

In the Township R. Kenneth Fairman turned the mayor's gavel to William L. Wilson, who passed it to Carl Schafer who relinquished it to John D. Wallace, scheduled to carry on as mayor during 1970.

Hi, 1970! As the big trucks made their hair-line turns from Nassau into Bayard Lane (just missing the little foreign car at the head of the line) . . . and a taxpayer circled centercity 99 times looking for a place to park . . . and the school board worked on a budget high enough to give teachers a salary increase and low enough to pass the voters . . . and snow removal crews flexed their plows for the record blizzard that is surely just around New Year's Eve . . . .

Princeton planned to greet a new year and a new decade. Peace and plenty — for all. What more could anyone hope from the '70s?

Parental Advice

One thing that won't just disappear like last week's snow is the problem of youth and drugs.

"This time of year, parents should be extremely cautious where their kids go, what parties they attend," warned Lieut. Michael Carnevale of the Borough Police. "We've been involved in a number of drug cases during the holiday period," he added, "and, once again, I would like to make the public aware that the problem is still here. I still maintain," he continued, "that the first line of defense against the use of drugs by teenagers is the parents."

Asked if he was referring to marijuana, Lieut. Carnevale replied, "I'm talking about acid, LSD and heroin. The frightening thing is that heroin seems to be the 'in' thing now."

News Of The THEATRES

"FIREBUGS"

Enters Repertory. A stark expressionist set and screen projections will be used by McCarter to heighten Max Frisch's "The Firebugs," scheduled to enter the theatre's repertory this Friday at 8:30. It will play again Sunday at a 3 p.m. matinee.

Richard Mathews will play Gottlieb Biedermann, protagonist of "The Firebugs" and a kind of German everyman. His wife will be played by Alice White, whom audiences will recall as Mrs. Pearce in "Pygmalion."

Ray Aranha will be Sepp Schmitz, a wrestler. Brendan Burke will portray the waiter, Willi Eisenring.

A chorus of Firemen will be led by Gordon Phillips. Lela Cannon, who was Mrs. Higgins in "Pygmalion," will be Anna, a maidservant.

FILMS BACK AGAIN

For Second Semester. "Here's Your Life," by the young Swedish director Jan Troell, will re-open McCarter's International Film Series which closed down temporarily for the theatre's various holiday activities.

The film will be shown next Wednesday, January 7, at 8 p.m.

"Here's Your Life" is a list of the significant events in the life a Swedish boy from the time he is 14 until he reaches the age of 18. The time is World War I.

Troell's vignettes take the boy through his first jobs and his first experiences with sex, through his awakening to the world of the intellect and of politics.

Critics have called the film "a poem to Sweden itself as well as a gentle essay on humanity," and have referred to Troell as "one of the brightest film talents to emerge from Scandinavia since Ingmar Bergman."

TRYOUTS SCHEDULED

By Community Players. "U.S.A." by John Dos Passos, will be presented by Princeton Community Players the last two weekends in February and tryouts have been scheduled for next Monday and Tuesday, January 5 and 6, at 8:30 p.m. They will be held at the Unitarian Church, Cherry Hill Road off Route 206.

The play has an equal distribution of men's and women's roles, and anyone who wishes may audition, Bernie Miller, of the Players, will direct.

This Sunday at 8:30, a general meeting of the Players will be held at the Unitarian Church. Sylvia Fontijn, president, will lead a discussion of the Dos Passos play, and will outline plans for the rest of the season.

Anyone interested in technical or backstage work is invited to attend Sunday's meeting. Additional information may be

LILLIAN GISH TO APPEAR

For Benefit Here. Lillian Gish will offer her insights into the people and events that have shaped the American film industry in a benefit appearance Monday, February 9, at McCarter Theater.

Miss Gish, whose own career is part of the history of American movies, will narrate a special film comprised of excerpts from many early film classics.

The theatrical benefit has been arranged by the English-Speaking Union, Princeton branch. Ticket price is $6 a seat, which includes a $2.50 tax exempt contribution to the Union. Proceeds are for the aid of the Union's Overseas Exchange Program.

Miss Gish has been well-known since her first roles in the "golden greats" of silent film: "The Birth of a Nation," and "Way Down East." She has remained active up to the present day, most recently co-starring with Burton, Taylor and Alec Guinness in the 1968 version of Graham Greene's "The Comedians."

The Princeton appearance of Miss Gish will be an innovation among the English-Speaking Union's fund-raising ventures. Applications for tickets should be sent with checks to the Union in care of Alfred O. Hoyt, secretary, 89 Battle Road, Princeton. Applications must be made before January 14.

SYMPOSIUM PLANNED

On The Dance. The New Jersey State Council on the Arts will conduct its first statewide Dance Symposium on Sunday afternoon, January 11, as part of a day-long dance festival to be held in collaboration with Rider College.

Dance teachers from all parts of New Jersey will meet at the Symposium with representatives of the New Jersey State Council on the Arts and the Association of American Dance Companies to discuss statewide dance needs, develop collaborative projects, and recommend new programs.

Special guest on the Dance Panel will be Alwin Nikolais, former President of the Association of American Dance Companies and one of leaders in the field of contemporary American dance.

All dance teachers and their students are invited to attend this meeting, which will be held in Room 201 of the Science Building, at Rider College No admission charge will be made for the Dance Symposium.

Directly following the Symposium, at 2 p.m., a selection of dance films will be screened to acquaint dance instruc

Brecht West Gets Grant

A $1,200 grant has been awarded to Brecht West, the New Brunswick experimental theatre, by the New Jersey State Council on the Arts.

The grant is itself experimental, according to the Council, because it is the first one to be awarded for the prime purpose of increasing the audience. One of the conditions of the grant is that Brecht West submit a report to the Council on the methods used and the results obtained.

Future grants to other theatres in the state will be based on the way the Brecht West grant turns out, the Council said.

"The grant will assist grassroots development of theatre in places like New Brunswick, that have shown a definite interest and need," said Byron Kelley, chairman of the Arts Council.

PRINCE

John and Mary (now playing) is a love story about a young furniture designer who picks up a girl at Maxwell's Plum in Manhattan's East Sixties and takes her home to bed.

Both have had previous love affairs, and although attracted to each other, they spar cautiously all the following day. Finally, they decide—24 hours later — to take the plunge and try to establish a meaningful relationship.

What richness and depth the movie has is mostly in the acting of the title roles by Dustin Hoffman and Mia Farrow — two immensely attractive personalities.

GARDEN and ERIC

On Her Majesty's Secret Service (held over) is at least as exotic, sexy and pseudo-violent an arry of the six preceding James Bond films. Australian George Lazenby replaces Sean Connery in the title role.

The assignment given to 007 this time is to invade the Alpine headquarters of a scientist (Telly Savalas). Savalas has plenty of gorgeous girls on hand to dazzle the secret agent, girls who will become lethal germ carriers to subdue the nations of the world.

There are assorted fights, shoot-outs, attacks and counter-attacks as 007 moves in. A word should be said for Diana Rigg, the English actress, who is an intelligent, charming and attractive asset as the first James Bond wife.

PLAYHOUSE

Take The Money and Run (now playing) is Woody Allen's episodic farce, full of outrageous one-line jokes and whacky situation set pieces.

There's no attempt at satire. Allen simply meets each situation with an off-center point of view.

The film traces the exploits of an ineffectual criminal named Virgil, played by Allen, from a childhood of slum deprivation to notoriety as a thief.

In his rise to the bottom, Allen is involved in a prison break so attentive to detail that the convicts incorporate the guards' underwear in their costumes . . . And then there's the bank robbery in which he misspells the hold-up note and embroils the tellers and bank executives in a linguistic dispute. So it goes, Woody Allen all the way.

University to End Power Plant Pollution

In a planned conversion to eliminate virtually all air pollution from its power plant, Princeton University is at work switching three mammoth boilers at its steam generating plant near Baker Rink from coal to gas-oil. Conversion of the first boiler was accomplished last week, and work on the other two will begin in the spring, with completion set for the fall.

One of the major users of coal in the central part of the state, purchasing more than 20,000 tons annually, Princeton is switching to a dual-fuel system in compliance with a new state statue set to go into effect in October, 1971. Although running primarily on gas, supplied by Public Service, the new system will be adaptable to oil, which will be used during peak loads as requested by the supplier.

The conversion project will cost an estimated $600,000 and will be completed more a year in advance of the deadline. "We feel the national problem of air pollution is so serious that the new New Jersey regulations and high cost of compliance are more than justified, reported Foster Jacobs, Director of the Department of Physical Plant.

Under the more stringent restrictions of recent state legislation, the allowable percent of sulphur content of coal will be cut to 0.2 percent. According to Mr. Jacobs, the University's operation for years has used coal containing less than one percent sulphur; however very little coal is mined in the United States which can come within the 0.2 percent limit.

The three boilers, operating on coal, have a generating capacity of 270,000 pounds of steam per hour, enough, according to Mr. Jacobs, to heat some 600 homes. The facility also generates about one-third of the electric power used on the campus. Conversion will allow an expected 10 to 15 percent gain in steam-generating capacity.

Nineteen Seventy Is Here!

The old year will go out wet, the Man reports, but along about the time 1970 is scheduled to arrive, the skies are expected to turn clear and colder, and drier air will replace the recent dampness.

Temperatures for the next few days should remain near normal for early winter, averaging from 32 to 38 degrees. It will be generally fair — at the moment, no further precipitation is forecast after the present turbulent area moves out of here.

TO THE CITIZENS OF PRINCETON:

The Princeton school budget for 1970-71 is based upon two factors: the conviction of the Board of Education that salaries of all members of the staff of the school system will have to be substantially increased: and the determination by the Board that all other expenditures, with only minor exceptions which will be explained below, will show at this time no increases whatever. The Board believes that this budget will continue to provide your children with an excellent environment combined with the least possible increase in taxes.

The increase in salaries we believe to be necessary in order to retain our present excellent teachers and to attract others. Our current salaries are not as competitive as they once were. During the past year, while our salary schedule was fixed because of a two- year contract, teachers' salaries throughout New Jersey and much of the nation were being increased more rapidly than our own. The proposed budget is designed to make us competitive once again.

By this date in previous years the School Board and the staff had already agreed upon a salary scale, and the Board was able to allocate a specific amount in the budget to salaries, which make up approximately 75% of a typical school budget. This year the situation is different. For the first time, in compliance with a new state law, (Chapter 303, Laws of 1968), the Board and the staff are engaged in mandated formal contract negotiations to determine not only salaries but also other terms and conditions of employment. At the time this statement goes to press, in late December, we can report that we have been meeting weekly for two months in serious negotiations with the teachers, and although agreement has not yet been reached, progress is clear. The discussions will probably continue beyond the first of the year, and for as long as necessary to reach a mutually satisfactory contract.

In the meantime, however, the Board must develop a budget for the school year 1970-71 in time for consideration by the community, a public hearing on January 20th, and a referendum on February 3rd. The time schedule for this procedure is also fixed by law. Therefore, in order to present as much specific budget information as possible, while at the same time meeting the requirements of good faith in our negotiations, the Board is following this procedure. We have provided an amount in the budget which we estimate will be sufficient for our negotiations. This amount is being presented to the public in a lump sum until after the negotiations have been completed. Since this is a substantial figure, we are holding at this time every other budget item in the system, with a very few exceptions, at present levels of expenditure. When the negotiations have been completed, the Board will publish a complete budget, broken down into every line item, with comparable figures for 1969-70, and percentage increases and decreases.

Items making up the remainder of the budget, approximately 25% of the total, will remain unchanged in the proposed budget. Expenditures during 1970-71 will be as they were this year, with very few exceptions. The exceptions will be these:

1. Materials, supplies, books, and contracts services items. These have gone up in cost and cannot readily be cut back. They will be increased at the estimated cost-of-living rise of 6%. The total increases of these items will be $45,000.
2. Several items such as substitute teachers and tuition for handicapped children, which are not controllable by the Board and have been under-budgeted in the past. These will be brought up to more realistic levels.

All other items will remain the same. No new positions will be added to the staff.

The Board believes that this budget will successfully combine our need to assure a superior teaching staff for Princeton's children and our need to maintain the lowest possible increase in taxes.

★ ★ ★ OVERVIEW OF THE PROPOSED 1970-71 BUDGET ★ ★ ★

The school budget consists of the proposed expenditures and related revenues from local taxes and other available sources.

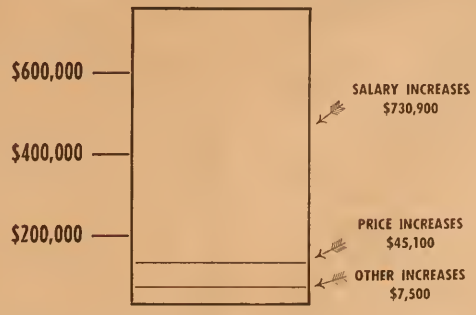
PROPOSED 1970-71 BUDGET

The chart above illustrates that the total expenditures proposed for 1970-71 are $7,024,500 and the revenues available from sources other than local taxes amount to $1,239,200.

It is anticipated that there will be a net decrease in the proposed budget revenues (from sources other than local taxes) of 2.5% or $32,400. This decrease is caused primarily by the planned withdrawal of students from sending districts to help relieve overcrowding in the High School.

The net increases in expenditures in the budget proposed for 1970-71 amount to $783,500 or 12.6%. This increase can be viewed as follows:

TOTAL EXPENDITURE INCREASE



As this chart illustrates, 93.3% of the increase is reflected in the salary accounts.

Hair Is the Male Image, How It Has Changed!

PRINCETONIAN

"HE IS NOT going to have an obvious haircut. We shape his hair so that it's going to be more manageable." Michael Maryk and Mark Gushy of The Princetonian.

DURNER'S

"THERE ARE STILL a few who get a haircut every week. They're middle age and older — but not the professors!" Robert Paolcaro and Larry Healy of Durner's Barber Shop.

UNIVERSITY

"SIDEBURNS? In general, they're longer, too . . . right down to the ear lobe." Lewis H. Ferrara of University Barber Shop.

RIALTO

"NORTH JERSEY BARBERS have raised the price to $3 because of the long hair. We don't do that here." Richard Pinelli and Ed Cifelli Rialto Barber Shop.

"I want a 'square' haircut," the gray-haired man joked as he settled into the barber chair in a Palmer Square shop.

"Not many do anymore!" he was told. "Even the little kids want sideburns..."

The barber business has changed in the last five years: crew cuts and square tops are out. Longer hair and Princetonian protein spray are in.

"The average businessman used to come in every two weeks," they'll tell you at Durner's. "Now he'll skip it for three or more weeks — although the IBM boys have to keep it pretty trim. Even THEY can have it a little longer."

A college boy may let his hair grow all summer. He may even add a beard. They come in here sometimes looking like raccoons," one barber says disparagingly. "Some of the professors are as bad as the students."

"We used to get a lot of Hun School students," Laurence C. Healy at Durner's notes. "Every Wednesday and Saturday there would be 15 or 20 of them in here. The new dean is letting them get away with longer hair — he wears HIS longer, too!"

Clean! Along with fewer haircuts, though, comes cleaner hair. "They must wash their hair every day!" Robert Paolcaro, Durner's new owner says of the high school and college students.

"They like it long enough on the sides to put it in back of their ears when they're home. They fluff it out with their fingers when they're with their friends."

Lewis H. Ferrara of the University Barber Shop, who has been cutting hair since 1918, misses the "American boy" types. "The young ones often want their hair given what they call a box cut: 'square back' or 'round back.' And in the front, it's down to the eyebrows.

"In general, I'd say there are less young people getting hair cuts," he speculates.

Larry Healy, a barber since 1922 and owner of Durner's from 1941 until last year, adds, "All they want when they come in is a trim & 'take off the curls,' they say."

He remembers when a cut was 25 cents, a shave 15 cents and tonic was free. Prices now hover between $2 and $3. Few businessmen get a shave any more. "They don't have the time." Durner's, a name around Princeton for 101 years, has a number of hurried customers from the Nassau Inn, where the shop is located. "I've got 10 minutes, can you cut it?" is the usual cry.

"Longish." At the Rialto on Nassau Street, where Ed Cifelli and Richard Pinelli are co-owners, the average customer has his hair cut "longish, combed back but neat, ending above the collar."

Sideburns are in, but some come back and get them cut off because they can't stand them when they go into the beard area." It's a different type of hair, Richard Pinelli explains. "It bushes."

The Rialto has only two or three customers who wear their hair long. "Not exactly Tiny Tim, but it ends on the top of the shoulder, Ed Cifelli says." Most are like the customer who was just here.

"He wanted long hair but tapered smooth; he didn't want a square back. It's the 8th grade up through high school that likes it long with a square back."

"I think it's like a hundred years ago," his partner muses, remembering Civil War photographs. "We don't make any fuss about it. We think a customer should wear his hair the way he wants it."

"I had one guy," Ed comments, "who came in here with really long hair and I had to give him a real baldy. When I finished, he told me, 'I'll see you next year'!" He laughed.

The Look. While Princeton's older barbers are shaking their heads over the changes, and the younger ones are going with it, the hair cutters at the Princetonian, Harrison and Nassau Streets, are riding the crest of the wave.

Michael Maryk and Mark Gushy are styling haircuts that cope with such problems as cowlicks, scars, large ears, receeding hairline, or difficult hair texture. They're finding fast converts all over town.

"We design the hair so that it's complimentary and easy for a client to maintain," Michael declares. "It's important that the hair never appear obviously 'fresh cut' or look as though a haircut is needed. This is a long way from the shaved heads of World War II."

Their customers are on an approximately three weeks' schedule, as are most of the men in town. But the Princetonian has a comfortable, club-like atmosphere quite different from the average barber shop, and cuts are given by appointment.

"We're on time! No businessman is going to have to waste time waiting; it's part of our service," Mark comments. A styling is $6 and takes an hour; a return

At Dutch Neck School

Earlier this month at the Dutch Neck School auditorium, the seventh and eighth grade students had the opportunity to meet and speak with West Windsor Township Clerk on topics concerning their community.

Mayor Roszel discussed West Windsor origins and growth. He reported the first proper name for West Windsor Township was Windsor Township, which extended through Nassau Street into Princeton. Windsor Township was later subdivided into two more townships: West Windsor and REPORT FROM THE MAYOR: West Windsor Township Mayor Malcolm Roszel (standing, accompanied by Township Clerk Lewis Chamberlain, (right), met recently with seventh and eighth grade students at the Dutch Neck School to discuss the history of the Township and some predictions for the future. Mayor Roszel spoke about township growth and predicted that by the year 2000 the population should be approximately 20,000. He also spoke on the following topics, pollution and garbage disposal, traffic, zoning, the proposed Mercer County Community College and the proposed high school, road construction and the development of industrial sections through out the community.

Mr. Chamberlin, Township Clerk for 33 years, told students about the functions of the governing body and other township offices. The assembly was arranged by Lisa Damon, eighth grade student in connection with her social studies lesson.

visit for a trim lasts a half hour, and the cost is $3.

One of their converts is a transplanted Philadelphian, unhappy ever since his barber retired to the Philadelphia Main Line (on the proceeds of his customers' stock market tips). He's finally settled for the Princetonian. "They use scissors, not clippers!" he reported with satisfaction.

"We've had a very satisfactory response from the community," Michael Maryk says. "Men really like to have expert style analysis of what we can do with their hair."

Protein. The Princetonian has based much of its hair grooming on protein lotion and shampoo developed from the 1954 discovery by Nobel prizewinner, Linus Pauling who stated that the hair is protein, not calcium.

"A lot has happened since then," Michael reviews. "Mark and I were working with a chemist in 1963, trying to find a solution that would not increase the consistency of the hair. We wanted something that could be absorbed. We developed a protein lotion that literally feeds the hair, and it causes the hair to become soft..." the Princetonian co-owner concludes.

Parents. All of the shops encounter the parent problem, which they handle in an upright, downright, forthright way.

"The little kids know what they want — and they tell you. Larry Healy at Dunner's reports smilingly. "You get in the middle with the parents if he wants it long and they don't. They'll send him back and you cut it again.

"The boys like the English cut, with or without a part, no taper hardly — just left thick and long — and bangs or a wave brushed across the front. It's a John-John with a part."

One of his longtime customers, Hans Rosenhaupt, was listening. "You know, when Sir Hugh Taylor came here in 1913 from England, they told him he had to get an American haircut. He's been coming in here ever since." Since styles are changing, it may be that Sir Hugh is finding himself slowly reverting to his English hair cut.

The Rialto has quite a few youngsters amongst its customers, and "they like it longish — except when mother or father want it short," Richard Finelli says. "Let's face it: long hair is the style!"

One barber blows the whistle on the boys and tells them, "Are you sure your father wants it that way? Because I'm not going to cut it twice!"

At the Princetonian, Mark Maryk says, "The pre-teen just needs his hair shaped once a month. The teenager is experimenting with longer hair. He has a devil of a time trying to manage it so that his mother and father can live with it.

"We've had more success with irate parents by asking them to wait in the waiting room — an hour later out comes junior. They are happy — and so are we. Women, in fact, are becoming our greatest allies.

"I'd say that the conservative type businessman is fast disappearing. They are buying 1970 clothes and finding that their hair is 1935!"

Inspection Time Extended

All motor vehicle inspection stations and driver qualification centers will be closed Friday, as well as Thursday for New Year's. All stations will resume their regular daytime and evening operating schedules on Saturday.

Because of the number of days the stations have been closed for holidays during December, Director June Streleski has announced that the deadline for passenger cars due for inspection during the month has been extended through January 10, 1970. This extension applies to passenger cars only.

At Princeton, the 1960s Belong to William Warren Bradley

When the 1960s began, Bill Bradley was a 17-year old who had not yet — as he would in the summer of 1961 — switched to Princeton after he had originally decided to go to Duke. Before the decade was barely half over, he had broken basketball records at the freshman, Princeton, Ivy League, national and Olympic level and had become by far the most overriding athletic figure of the era at his alma mater.

In greater retrospect, he is the dominant figure in the history of Princeton athletics, surpassing even the now legendary Dick Kazmaier. This is not merely a matter of opinion: well before the end of the decade which followed Kazmaier's gridiron exploits, a number of the statistical records he had set had been erased by lesser players who lacked his composite ability.

In contrast, not only has no one at the Princeton or Ivy level broken a single record that Bradley set, but the spread between his achievements and the occasional superlative performance by one of the latter-day players is so great as simply to emphasize the sheer magnificence of his achievements. Even in a sport in which scoring at the individual and team level has more than doubled in the past 30 years, it is entirely probable that the best of Bradley's records will last out the current century.

There have, of course, been other fine athletes at Princeton during the '60s, although from a spectator point of view, they are limited almost entirely to basketball and football. On the gridiron, the top name is a classmate of Bradley's — Cosmo Iacavazzi — who likewise achieved All-American status. It was their membership in the Class of 1965 which enabled the Tigers to become the only Ivy League college in the decade to win the football and basketball championships in the same year — when they were seniors.

There are two intriguing footnotes to history involving Iacavazzi and Bradley. Like Bradley, Cosmo had plans to go elsewhere, thinking strongly in terms of Cornell into the summer of 1961, so that Princeton came within a few weeks of missing out on both of them.

When Bradley came to Princeton, even as a freshman, he asked for the number 42. Kazmaier, it developed, has been his boyhood idol. Today, the number 42 is retired in both sports, and is the only one at Princeton to have achieved such status.

The Rule Book Is Changed. If Iacavazzi was the dominant football player of the decade, he was only barely ahead of the picturesque Charlie Gogolak, whose soccer - style placekicking did even more than that of his older brother, Pete, to popularize the method at the collegiate and professional levels. So effective was Gogolak's prolific scoring (27 field goals in three years, six in one game, one from 54 yards out — for records that still stand) that defenses rigged to foil him were banned from the rule book. Most notable was the human pyramid that Cornell erected one October afternoon on Schoellkopf Field.

The '60s began with Dick Colman entering his fourth season as Charlie Caldwell's successor and saw him guide the Tigers to three first-place Ivy finishes, two of them involving ties. Before the decade had ended, Colman had departed for the less pressurized atmosphere of Middlebury, Vt. ("We did twice as well in football as we had a year ago," he reported, with tongue only slightly in cheek. "This fall, we won TWO games.")

The Colman era was succeeded in 1969 by the McCandless era, in a manner that could hardly have been more dramatic. Discarding the single wing after it had reigned here with marked success for almost a quarter century, McCandless was the recipient of everything from unwanted sympathy to undeserved criticism when the 29-0 rout in the centennial game at Rutgers was followed by unimpressive performances and a 2-2 record against Columbia, Cornell and Colgate.

The eye-popping transformation followed, capped by the totally unexpected 35-7 rout of undefeated Dartmouth which brought a share of the Ivy title. In the final year of the 60s, the T had become a way of life at Princeton, with many a football fan counting the days until it and the 1970 Tiger eleven get a revenge shot at Rutgers next September.

Success on Other Fronts. From a spectator point of view, many of the top achievements in other Princeton sports go largely unnoticed. Championships have been won in considerable profusion in lacrosse and tennis, major upsets were recorded with a victory in the Eastern Intercollegiates in swimming and another in the Ivy League in wrestling. Ross Wales won an Olympic medal in his specialty, the butterfly, but it happened in Mexico City and was visible here only in the small print.

The 60s, really, belong primarily to Bradley — who began to draw huge crowds to outmoded Dillon Gym when he played as a freshman in games preliminary to the varsity contests. That was the winter marked by suspense even when he toed the foul line, because he set an NCAA record when he made 56 consecutive free throws.

Fittingly enough—because every good story needs a rags-to-riches angle—Princeton lost the first two Ivy League games in which Bill played, including his first in Dillon Gym — Yale winning, 62-61. But the Tigers got the better of the well-manned Ellis when Bradley and a member of the current Tiger coaching staff, Art Hyland, paced the victory over the Blue in a playoff in the Fordham gym.

After that year, Princeton lost only three league games in two seasons, despite the fact that the calibre of most of the personnel was sufficiently weak it wouldn't even have made the squad which last winter became the first in Ivy history to go 14-and-0. That was Bradley — association with him made ordinary mortals perform far above their potentials.

Transcending Popularity. The native of Crystal City, Mo., proved, too, that fans to whom Orange and Black and the Ivy League would normally be an anathama warmed to the lustre of a soft-spoken superstar. When an announcement was made in the old Madison Square Garden that Bradley had led underdog Princeton to victory over high-ranked Providence, 109 to 69, in an NCAA playoff, 18,000 hard-nosed New Yorkers howled with appreciative glee.

If Kazmaier was the Princeton athlete of the '50s and the decade just ended belonged to Bradley, who will dominate the 70s? Oddly, with ten years still to go, two possibilities are already in the wings: freshman fullback Bill Early, who finished his first season here with greater potential than Iacavazzi; and freshman Brian Taylor, who may trail only Bradley by the time his basketball career is over. Or it may, of course, be some future star not yet in his teens.

The 60s, however, are Bradley's, and those who watched and wondered will always remember what they saw.

TURNING POINT NEAR In Ivy Basketball. If Penn sylvania defeats Princeton Monday night in Jadwin Gymnasium, as it is favored to the game will mark a shift in the balance of power in Ivy basketball from the extremely well-fed Tigers to the hungry Red and Blue.

Whereas Princeton has won seven of the last ten league titles, the Quakers were victorious in the past decade only in 1966 and you have to go all the way back to 1953 to find the time they won before that. An 0-2 start, with Columbia and one or two other tough opponents still to face, will mean virtual elimination for the Tigers, and there is solid reason to believe that good as the McMillan-Dotson combine is, Penn will top the Lions in the final standings.

The dynasty should continue to build in Philadelphia, because the Quakers aren't starting a single senior, and their bench is well stocked with players who could be regulars on most of the other teams in the circuit. Penn won its first seven games, including a contest with nationally-ranked Villanova, and could finish the season as the best team in this section of the country.

It is worth adding that there is reason to believe that Princeton will regain the dominant role in the league by the end of the 1972 season at the latest, although the Tigers' current group of talented freshmen should give Penn a major challenge as soon as they reach varsity status. In the long run, the steady flow of basketball talent drawn to Jadwin Gym is a good bet to return Princeton to the top rung on the ladder — albeit not as frequently as the seven-for-ten performance recorded in the decade just ended. That is without parallel in the 70-year history of the league, and is very unlikely to be duplicated.

Quakers Have Fine Balance. Starting a 6-8 junior (Bob Wolf) at center; a 6-8 sophomore (Bob Morse) and a 6-7 classmate (Corky Calhoun) at forwards; and two highly-talented back courtmen in Steve Bilsky and Dave Wohl, Penn has extreme ability. No one player is essential; Bilsky's 16-point average is tops, but the Quakers come close to averaging all five starters in double figures.

Five lettermen are available as reserves, if any regular finds himself in foul trouble. The pressure will be on Penn as it begins to taste the favorite's role and, more important by on Monday night, its first triumph here in 15 years. Coach Dick Harter's quintet holds an 85-62 triumph recorded over the Tigers without Jeff Petrie on December 13, and while the return meeting figures to be a good deal closer, Princeton's inability to match the depth of Penn's all-around quality should tell the final story.

TV Saturday. Rutgers' biennial appearance in Jadwin Gym Saturday will be marked by the only televised action here in the ECAC series during the season. Starting at 1 p.m., the game may be seen on Channel 4.

The Scarlet is subpar this winter, winning only three of its first nine games. A 6-5 sophomore, Steve Kaplan, plays well for the Knights, as do Bob Wenzel and Bob Fiedler, who combined for 49 in a 78-77 loss last weekend to Northwestern. This is one Princeton should win unless the Tigers have their eyes on Monday's meeting with Penn.

Michigan was on the schedule this week for a New Year's eve clash at Ann Arbor. Of the five meetings between the two universities, Princeton has won only the first — a 30-29 scoring spree staged in 1940.

Skaters Return to Action

Princeton's hockey team, still looking for its first victory, is unlikely to find it in the next few turns along the hazardous trail that symbolizes the current season for the undermanned Tigers.

Loser in its first six games, the Orange and Black will travel this weekend to play two of the stronger eastern teams on their own ice. Princeton takes on St. Lawrence at Canton, N.Y., Friday night and plays powerful Clarkson at nearby Potsdam the following evening. The Tigers defeated St. Lawrence in 1965 but their last triumph over Clarkson was recorded in 1951.

Rensselaer Poly at Troy next Wednesday will precede the first Ivy League game of the season in Baker Rink Saturday afternoon, January 10. That will be against Brown, good enough to hold a 4-3 triumph registered against Harvard at Cambridge.

IVY OVER BIG TEN

Tigers Defeat Indiana, 82-76. When Indiana used a man-for-man defense, big John Hummer hit for 17 points in the first 13 minutes. When the Hoosiers switched to a zone, co-captain Jeff Petrie popped away from the outside, and when the Big Ten defenders came out to stop him, the Tigers started feeding Hummer again.

Hummer scored 32 points and Petrie 31, a bit more than enough to keep the game from being close in its final stages. It was an 82-76 victory for Princeton in the first game between the two universities, staged Saturday as the opening contest in the first annual Bruin Classic at Los Angeles. (For the result of Monday night's game with the host team, UCLA, see page 26.)

Control of the contest with Indiana seesawed until early in the second half. The Hoosiers held a five-point lead in the early going but Hummer always kept Princeton within range, and just before the buzzer, baskets by sophomore Reg Bird and junior Ed Staniszak put the Tigers on top, 37-35.

The Big Ten team took a 47-46 lead with four minutes gone in the final period, but Hummer and Petrie stayed hot and the victors went on a 12-2 surge that all but broke the game open. Indiana cut the margin to 73-68 with 4:33 to go but by then both its high scoring players had four fouls apiece and both drew their fifth with more than a minute left.

Princeton's defense improved, the Tigers drawing only 12 fouls in the game, whereas Indiana's seventh in the second half came with nine minutes left and Princeton converted on enough of the one-and-one situations to retain the upper hand. Hummer drew four fouls in the first 15 minutes of the second half but was still around at the buzzer.

PHS FINISHES SECOND

In Area Mat Tourney. Capturing four individual titles, Princeton High School finished second to Ewing Saturday in the first Central Jersey Wrestling Tournament held at Lawrence High School. Ewing, which PHS defeated by four points in its opening meet of the season earlier this month, amassed 79 points to Princeton's 65.

Hopewell Valley was third with 61 points, followed by Lawrence (40), Trenton (16) and Notre Dame (11).

Going into the championship round, PHS had entries in six of the 12 classes. The four who survived to win individual titles were Dave MaeDonald, 106-pound class, who decisioned Ewing's Stan Bales; Mark Evans, Little Tiger 116 pounder and co-captain, who decisioned Chuck Wert of Ewing; Lawrence Parker, 178-pound class, who pinned Randy Goff of Lawrence; and LouJohn Russi, Princeton's undefeated heavyweight, who pinned Ed Van Hise of Hopewell Valley. MaeDonald, Evans and Rossi had been seeded first in their divisions.

Two of coach Tom Murray's grapplers who lost out in the final round were John Cushman and Bobby Arcaro. Cushman was pinned by Ewing's Ron Lapetz in the 136-pound class, while Arcaro lost a decision in the 148-pound class to Rich Sampson, also of Ewing.

BRISTOL TOPS PHS, 45-42

In Holiday Cage Tourney. Playing its steadiest ball of the season, Princeton High School (3-3) almost shocked the host team in the opening round of the Bristol High School Tournament Saturday before bowing in the final minute, 45-42, to Bristol.

The tournament was scheduled to end Tuesday evening when PHS faced Yeadon in the consolation round. Yeadon lost to Holy Ghost Prep, 81-74, in Saturday's first game.

Bristol won the ball game from the foul line, as the Little Tigers outscored the host team from the field, 18-12. PHS made 6 of 14 attempts from the charity stripe, while Bristol converted 21 of 40.

PHS coach Larry Ivan reported that Bristol shot only 12 percent the entire second half. "That's a great compliment to our defense," he said. "We controlled them because as a team they like to run and shoot."

Lead Seesaws. The lead changed six times in the final period. It began with the teams tied, 30-30, as a result of John Schmidt's jumper at the end of the third period.

With 28 seconds to go, Princeton's Walt Taylor had an opportunity to put his team ahead by one if he converted a one-and one situation, but he missed the shot. With nine seconds remaining PHS was still behind by only two. However, an official called a technical on Bob Sweeney for stepping across the line and crowding as Bristol tried to put the ball in play. Bristol's Bruce Stancil converted the foul to put the game out of reach.

From Ivan's viewpoint, the game was "Unbelievable. We never should have lost it. I couldn't believe what I saw half of the time," he continued, referring to the officiating. But he let it go as "just one of those games."

Riddell Scores 23. Half of the scoring for Princeton came off the fingertips of Paul Riddell who had a game-high 23 points—the first time a Little Tiger has scored in the 20s this season. The 6-5 Riddell fouled out with about a minute to go, as did Princeton's other big man, Pete Smagorinsky.

Despite the hard-to-take setback, Ivan could point to improvement. One plus was the few turnovers (9) committed by PHS. Even more heartening, was the Little Tigers' handling of the full-court press that Bristol used throughout. Failure to handle a press had been one of Princeton's early season weaknesses.

PHS, in turn, harrassed Bristol with a zone press, man-to-man defense. "It bothered them," Ivan commented.

Jeff Haring contributed 10 points to the PHS attack and Marc Darrow, 4. Ivan cited Smagorinsky for his work under the boards.

"Overall, our defense played a fantastic game. I sure wish we could have won it," Ivan said.

Tigers Lose to UCLA in Last Four Seconds

A 30-point underdog, Princeton's basketball team very nearly achieved one of the major upsets of the dying decade Monday night when it led second-ranked UCLA down to the buzzer on the Bruins' own court.

Ahead throughout a hectic second half, the Tigers owned a 71-65 lead with three minutes to go. UCLA rallied for five straight points, but with just over half a minute left, it was still Princeton, 73-72.

Two foul shots by Sid Wicks of the Bruins put the California quintet in front but the Tigers came down court, Jeff Petrie shot and missed, and John Hummer tipped in the rebound. With 11 seconds to go, it was Princeton again, 75-74.

UCLA called time out, fed Wicks in the corner and his 18-foot jumper went through to make it a 76-75 final. In the first year of the post-Lew Alcindor era, the Bruins had gone into the game with a record of 98 victories in their last 100 games.

Petrie led both teams with 28 points to raise his three game average to 26.3 since recovering from his back injury. Hummer had 25, while sophomore Reg Bird contributed a highly valuable 12. UCLA, which three times in seven games this year has hit for 120 points or more, could not produce more than 19 from any one player.

RENWICK'S WILL CLOSE

On New Year's Eve. Renwick's Restaurant, a Nassau street landmark since the 1800's, will close this Wednesday.

"The Renwick's name will continue in Princeton at a later date," Harold Ostroff, president of the firm, said on Monday.

The space will be rented by Palmer Square Inc. to two of its present tenants: La Vake Jewelers, which will absorb the frontage for increased showroom area, and to Langrock's, which will take part of the rear, according to Fred M. Blaicher of PSI.

Renwick's began to manufacture ice cream in 1883, opening an ice cream parlor in 1886, and at one time was the only manufacturer of ice cream in New Jersey. It expanded to include catering, restaurant and cafeteria services. In recent years it added its own bakery.

Harry Renwick was the original partner of Mr. Ostroff when the latter joined the restaurant in 1950.

Renwick's employees, Mr. Ostroff said, will have no problem in finding jobs, "considering the crucial shortage of restaurant help in town."

MILESTONE REACHED

With Sale of 1000th Autoflow. Applied Data Research, Inc. computer software and service company based in the Rte 206 Center, has announced the sale of the 1000th Autoflow, Richard C. Jones, president, said this week.

This is a milestone in the computer software industry," Mr. Jones said. "We are the first company to have successfully produced and marketed this number of a single proprietary program." Autoflow, an automated documentation and debugging system, produces accurate and standardized two-dimentional flowcharts and other aids for documentation and debugging.

Initially marketed in 1966, Autoflow has achieved a number of industry 'firsts' — first software product included in the General Service Administration schedule (1966), first software program to be selected by Industrial Research Magazine as one of the 100 most significant technical products of the year (1967) and, most likely, the first program to have produced sizeable sales volume — approximately $6 million.

Martin A. Goetz, vice president and director of proprietary software products, said the users list continues to be broad — aviation, auto, computer (manufacturers and software), financial, insurance, petroleum, chemical and other manufacturing and service industries and such governmental agencies as NASA, Department of Defense, Commerce Department among others.

FINE CAREER CLIMAXED. Designation as the most valuable player on offense in the North-South All-Star game on Christmas Day capped the football career of Bruce Van Ness, the Princeton resident who starred for Rutgers. He averaged 5.1 yards on 14 carries, handled the punting assignment and recovered a fumble that set up a TD in North's 31-19 triumph.

NEW CENTER PLANNED

By RCA at Somerville Establishment of an RCA Integrated Circuit Technology Center at Somerville to support the Corporation's quest for increased product leadership and a bigger share of the potential billion dollar integrated circuit market, has been announced by Dr. James Hillier, Executive Vice President, Research and Engineering.

At the same time, Dr. Hillier announced the appointment of Ben A. Jacoby as Operations Director of the RCA Integrated Circuit Technology Center. Mr. Jacoby previously was Manager of Solid-State Marketing for RCA Solid-State Division.

Dr. Hillier said the Center is being formed to enhance and accelerate the utilization of integrated circuits in all RCA products. The new activity, he added, will complement the integrated circuit efforts of the Solid-State Division of Electronic Components, headquartered in Somerville, and will include groups from RCA product divisions involved in the development, design and production of equipment incorporating integrated circuits.

"Major product divisions will provide resident groups at the Center to speed the conversion of new technological opportunities into advanced product concepts," Dr. Hillier explained. "By bringing together key divisional engineering personnel at one location, the Center will aid in the cross-pollination of design concepts and in the combination of requirements to maximize RCA's total skills in integrated circuits.

NEW FORSGATE RENTAL

For Western Electric Project. A new research building of 44,000 square feet has been rented in Forsgate Park, Monroe Township by the Western Electric Engineering Research Center of Hopewell Township.

The space will house a project to develop new technology for the manufacture of a telephone transmission medium requiring very high precision.

These experimental facilities could not be accommodated for technical reasons in the Engineering Research Center, according to general manager W. O. Fleckenstein. He announced the signing of a 10 year lease on the Forsgate building with the Radhill Realty Company this week.

Staff members will begin to occupy the new building early in 1970, growing to a full complement of 35 employees by late 1971. The entire project is expected to last from five to eight years, and administration of the new work will be provided from the Engineering Research Center.

Obituaries

Prof. Joseph Hromadka, who left his faculty position at Princeton Theological Seminary in 1947 for his native Czechoslovakia because he preferred the Communists' way of life, died December 26 in a hospital in Prague. Eighty years old, he had suffered a heart attack three weeks ago.

Dr. Hromadka had completed 19 years as a teacher at the John Huš Theological Seminary in 1939 when he came to the United States to teach at the Seminary here. He remained throughout World War II, but returned to Czechoslovakia shortly after it had joined the nations behind the Iron Curtain.

A year after he had left Princeton — to the dismay of his associates here — Dr. Hromadka made international headlines at the first Assembly of the World Council of Churches in Amsterdam. In a debate with John Foster Dulles, later U.S. Secretary of State, on the problems of the world, the Czech theologian declared that Western supremacy in international affairs had ended. He urged the West to become "co-builders" with "the new barbarians, who are coming of age and aspiring to a place in the sun through the Communist movement."

When he had returned to Czechoslovakia a year earlier, Dr. Hromadka asserted that the Communists had come to power in Eastern Europe because of the West's failure to solve social problems. He urged Christians to attempt to "purify" rather than "oppose" the Communist attempt to create a better society.

Despite his apparent leniency toward Communist rule, the one-time Princetonian did not hesitate to take exception to mistakes he felt Russia made. The most notable example was a letter written in August, 1968, the day after the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia. His letter of protest to the Russian ambassador to Czechoslovakia was composed, he said, "with a feeling of deep bitterness."

A member of the Executive Board of the Protestant World Council of Churches, Dr. Hromadka was described in The New York Times this week as "an irenic iconoclast and leading advocate of Christian-Marxist dialogue and East-West understanding." In 1958, he founded the Christian Peace Conference and was awarded the Lenin Peace Prize.
